Prime Minister of Britain	- Lloyd-George saw the need for a moderate peace
President of the United States	- Wilson wanted a just peace that would make future ^{impossible} wars
Prime Minister of France	- determined for compensation and make it impossible for Germany to attack France ever again.
Why wasn't Russia invited?	- Russia wasn't invited due to its new-found communism
What was the most revenge orientated country?	- France wanted heavy penalties like lost land, a depleted military, and reparations on Germany
What specific land did France want? Why?	- In 1870 Alsace-Lorraine was taken from France. In 1919 it was given back at the PPC
Buffer zone between France and Germany?	- Rhineland was made a de-militarized "bufferzone" between France and Germany enabling them from carrying out any military activities in the area. Allied troops stationed there ^{instead} .
Define "Mandate"?	- Run by different Allied powers until ready for self ^{rule} .
2 reasons for a stable Germany?	- Lloyd George wanted German stable because if not they couldn't help European trade expand, and they would be too poor to buy British goods.
How did the President plan to avoid future wars?	- Wilson's 14 points promised a future with no wars by ideas like no more secret treaties, a new League of Nations, and self-government for empires like Austria-Hungary.
What 3 countries were created from A-H?	- With the break-up of A-H, Poland, Czech, Yugoslavia were created
Why would Germany be mad about this?	- The new "Polish Corridor" creates a trade route to sea - The war Guilt Clause blamed Germany fully for starting conflict, when A-H could have shouldered some too.
What is Article 231?	- The treaty and 231 angered Germany and could have caused "poverty due to reparations and war costs."
2 ways the treaty could have been a stimulous for WWII

The PPC was held at the end of the war with similar intentions to negotiate reparations and war guilt. France was the most revenge driven and took land and reparations. The map of Europe had changed after the signing of the treaty. Germany lost a lot of conquered territory after the negotiations.
